FOR A SHOE FACTORY

Experienced Man Here and Mayville
Is Offered a Fine Opportunity Right Now.

Mayville stands in a fair way to get another shoe factory. A gentleman well versed in the shoe factory business is in the city looking over the situation.

If the proper effort is put forth, it will not be long until Mayville will have an up-to-date plant employing 75 hands.

The Public Ledger vouches for this proposition and by starting even this small plant it may lead to making Mayville a rival of Portsmouth as a shoe city.

FIRE SCARE

Mr. Thomas A. Davis' Handsome Home
Scene of Exciting Half Hour.

The beautiful home of Mr. Thomas A.
Davis, founder and former owner and editor of The Public Ledger, was endangered by fire last evening, just after 6 o'clock when an electric insulated wire became un-insulated and burned through a natural gas pipe, in the rear parlor. The escaping gas caught fire of course, and soon there was a small, but roaring and dangerous blaze, which was burning briskly around the ceiling, when a hurried telephone alarm brought the Fire Department crew, with the "Kinney Mac" auto engine.

Capt. Hite and his men soon smothered the blaze out with the chemical apparatus. Loss fully $300, as one room and furnishings are badly damaged.

The scare was quite severe to Mr.
Davis who has been under the weather for some time, and to his niece, Miss Mollie Edmonds, who has been ill for a month.

However, it was Providential that Mr. Davis' home and family escaped as they did.

The Daughter of David Kerr

By HARRY KING TOOTLE

Illustrations by Ray Walters

Copyright by A. C. McClurg & Co., 1912.

SYNOPSIS.

Gloria Kerr, a motherless girl, who has spent most of her life in school, arrives at her father's home in Belmont. David Kerr is the political boss of the town, and is anxious to prevent his daughter's learning of his real character. Kendall, representing the Chicago packers, is negotiating with Judge Gilbert, Kerr's chief adviser, for a valuable franchise. They fear the opposition of Joe Wright, editor of the reform paper. Kerr asks the assistance of Judge Gilbert in introducing Gloria to Belmont society, and promises to help him put through the packers' franchise and let him have all the graft. Gloria meets Joe Wright at the Belmont. It appears they are on intimate terms, having met previously in a touring party in Europe. The Gilberts invite Gloria to stay with them pending the refunding of the Kerr home. Wright begins his fight against the proposed franchise in the columns of his paper, the Belmont News. Kerr, through his henchmen, exerts every influence to hamper Wright in the publication of his paper. Gloria realizes she is not being received by the best society and is unhappy. She takes up settlement work. Kerr and his henchmen decide to buy Kerr's paper and ask the editor to meet them at the Belmont office. Calling at Gilbert's office to solicit a donation Gloria meets Wright. He proposes and is accepted while waiting. Gloria is called into the conference. Wright refuses to sell his paper and declares he will fight a fight. The Belmont News enters with a bitter attack on Kerr. Gloria calls Wright a coward and refuses to listen to any explanation from him.

CHAPTER XVI.

The unexpected and sensational manner in which the visit of Joe Wright to Judge Gilbert's office was terminated was not without effect upon every one in the room. Pity for Gloria was the dominating emotion, for everyone present realized her unhappy position. The dramatic revelation of her love affair, the knowledge that she had been sacrificed, stirred every heart. Mrs. Gilbert and Mrs. Hayes, not well versed in politics, harbored no slight resentment against the publisher of the News, since they regarded the article as too severe. Were not their husbands interested on the same side as David Kerr? And they were honest men. But their husbands know the full measure of the bitter cup that both the boss and his daughter, for the father's misdeeds, were called upon to drain.

The first thing to do was to get Gloria away from the office. For several days she had been staying with Mrs. Hayes, and thither she was now taken. By Dr. Hayes' order she was put at once to bed, and under the influence of an opiate, she was soon asleep. Dr. Hayes came downstairs and announced to Kerr, who was savagely peeling back and forth in the drawing-room, that his daughter was suffering from a great nervous shock. He also said that she would probably sleep for several hours.

"It isn't no use for me to stay here then," the boss declared. "If you want me you can get me by telephone at my office or Gilbert's or at the club rooms."

"Even if she asks for you," said the doctor. "I think it best for you to stay away until her nerves are quiet."

As there was nothing further the two men could do, they walked downtown together, leaving Mrs. Hayes to watch over Gloria.

It was nine o'clock before the girl opened her eyes. Dr. Hayes had been home to dinner and then gone out again. His wife was sitting in Gloria's room reading by a light which was carefully shaded so as not to annoy the sleeper. She had turned several pages of her book with a feeling that her patient was now fully awake before she looked up to see if her belief was justified. Mrs. Hayes was gazing vacantly at the ceiling.

"Is there anything you want, dear?" she asked, going over to the bed.

As Mrs. Hayes looked down at the girl, she seemed to her like a lily that had been beaten by the wind and bruised by the rain and left all forlorn to die. In the girl's face she read the story of the last few hours.

Two Windows Looking Out Over the Roofs of Neighboring Houses.

"Is there anything you want, dear?" she repeated.

Gloria looked up at her with a pathetic little smile of appreciation for her kindness. She threw one hand out on top of the cover, and Mrs. Hayes took it in hers. It was some time, however, before Gloria spoke.

"You heard everything?"

"Yes."

"And you understand?"

"I think I do, Gloria."

"Then there isn't anything much for me to tell you."

For a long time she preserved silence. Mrs. Hayes holding her hand but saying nothing.

"It isn't as if he had died," she began slowly, almost as if just talking aloud to herself. "I think I could have stood that. In time everything would have come to be just a beautiful dream, Paris and Belmont and all. In my heart I could always have cherished the memory of a strong, brave man, the man I thought he was. You know, Mrs. Hayes, he seemed to me to be very much like my father."

For a time she thought it over to herself. Mrs. Hayes did not press her, and continued to show her sympathy by holding her hand.

"Yes, it would have been a lot better had he died before I ever knew. What would have been a beautiful dream is now only a hideous nightmare. And I believed in him so! You who have seen just a little of him can't know how I loved him. It wasn't exactly love when we were abroad in the same party. Yes, it was; only I didn't know it. It wasn't until he had gone away and no word came from him that I knew how much he was to me. And then I met him here. Heaven seemed to open for me that night."

She turned her head for a minute, and the tears began to flow. When she began again her eyes were still blurred with tears.

"I can tell you, and I could tell Mrs. Gilbert, that it's going to hurt me a lot. It's going to hurt to think how I was deceived. I thought I was building my house of life upon a rock, and when the rains came I awoke to find the foundation was only shifting sand."

"We all have our troubles, dear," Mrs. Hayes told her. "Yours may seem hard to bear, but you must know that life can't all be painted in rainbow hues. I've taken you with me into Belmont's unhappiest homes, and what you have seen should teach you to bear your own trials with resignation and fortitude as a Christian should. Perhaps it's not well to think how much better off we are than other people, but when we do think of it we see that God has shown us abundant kindness compared to that given to others, and then our crosses are lighter."

"But I loved him so!" cried Gloria, burying her face in the pillow.

Mrs. Hayes could only clasp the girl's hand. The attempt to comfort her was unprofitable. Her grief was too new, her wounds too fresh for comfort. Longer and longer grew the intervals between her sobs. Finally Mrs. Hayes thought she had fallen asleep, but Gloria was only thinking. It came to her that she was still young. Love would never be hers, she was sure of that; but long years stretched out before her. She couldn't be a coward and shrink those years. Once she had built her house of love and life upon the quaking sands, now she would build her house of life upon the firm rock of service. In ministering to the unfortunate, she might find succor for her own sorrow.

"Mrs. Hayes?"

"What, Gloria?"

"I'm not going to let anything that happened today spoil my life."

"Of course not, dear. But today may be a sunshine tomorrow for us."

"I don't know about the sunshine, but I do know that I want to go along just as if nothing had happened. Tomorrow let's do just what we planned to do, and the next day and the next. I want to keep busy. Can't you understand?"

Mrs. Hayes did understand, and admired the girl for her bravery.

"All right, Gloria. I think that is best. We weren't put into this world to have only the good things of life and shirk the bad things. We must take them as they come, the bad with the good. You are doing just what Mr. Wright would have you do if he were the man you thought him and he had died before your wedding day. Perhaps all will come out as you once had planned."

The daughter of David Kerr shook her head.

"That can never be."

She said no more, and after a time seemed to fall asleep. Mrs. Hayes unclasped her hand, turned out the light, and left the room.

Through the windows streamed the moonlight. The girl assured that she was alone, turned on her side and watched the beams creep slowly across the room.

What a flood of memories the moonlight brought!

Those first nights on shipboard had been under a silver moon that shed its rays upon a silver sea. Those nights in France a month later had been under a moon no less gorgeous. Then had come the Rhine and there, too, had been moonlight.

She tried to think of him as he had been, not as he was. In him she had found every good trait man should have. She was chagrined to think how easily it now appeared she had been won. How much she would have been spared, she pondered, had she not been so eager for his love as to show him so soon that she cared for him.

Every familiar gesture which was at all a part of him she knew would call him to mind when another man might make it. The way he held his cigar when he smoked, the odd manner in which he would look at her together whenever a knotty problem bothered him, these little things and a host of others would come back to plague her.

All the dear, dead past crowded into her mind. It was not of the man whom that afternoon she had spurned that she thought, but of the man whom in her heart she cherished—her ideal.

With a mighty sob she began again to weep. There had come to her the realization that love was done. Far across the room the moonbeams crept before Gloria fell into a fitful slumber.

CHAPTER XVII.

"I've forgotten what we'd planned for this afternoon," Gloria remarked to Mrs. Hayes the morning after the stormy scene in Judge Gilbert's office. Yesterday was carefully ignored by both as they talked.

"This was the day Mrs. Wallace asked us to help her at the mission," Mrs. Hayes explained.

She did not say further that she had telephoned earlier in the morning and had Mrs. Wallace, the matron, make plans whereby the whole afternoon would be taken up. She believed Gloria's peace of mind would be all the greater were she engaged in some work which would make her feel that through her the pain of the sufferer was alleviated and the bruised heart of the unhappy bound up.

It was just two o'clock when they reached the mission. They had not been there long before Mrs. Wallace suggested that they call on a poor girl who was ill in a room over Mike Noonan's saloon. The sick woman was known to her, but she told nothing of her story. It wasn't much different from any one of a half a hundred she might have told.

The two women felt not the slightest fear in walking through such a tough quarter of the town. Mrs. Hayes was an experienced settlement worker, and knew many of the persons whom they passed. They for their part knew and respected her for the kindly charity she dispensed so unostentatiously. As for Gloria, she could fear nothing since she was almost in total ignorance of what dangers might beset their path. Then, too, she was busy with her own thoughts.

Mrs. Hayes had been told in what room the sick woman lay, and without a word to anyone, in fact they saw no one, they went in the door on the side street and climbed the dark, uncarpeted stairs to the third floor. At a door just at the foot of the flight of steps which led to the fourth story, Mrs. Hayes knocked gently. There was no answer. She decided that if there was no response to the next knock she would open the door to see if the girl were asleep. A second and louder knock, however, aroused her and she called to them to enter.

Gloria and Mrs. Hayes walked into the room, and as the latter went to the bedside to explain how they happened to come, the daughter of David Kerr stood stock still and gazed about her with undisguised curiosity.

The occupant of the room, a frail little creature with uncertain, golden hair was known to her companion as Little Ella. Upon the blotter at the police station she was always hooked as Laetia Windermere. She had found the name in a novel and, liking it, had taken it for her own. In the unkindly daylight, without the paint that mocked the cheek that once had bloomed a healthier hue, the pallor of her face was heightened by the dark circles under her eyes. Yet the ravages of a life too harsh for one so weak had not been so great as to blot entirely from her face the traces of a simpering sweetness.

Little Ella's room could be summed up in one word, that word would be—sham. It was not a poverty that honestly confessed itself to be such, that room. Instead it was a poverty that slunk away into corners and hid behind the rankest imitations of better things. Everything seemed to have been purchased at the cheapest booths at Vanity Fair. There were few things of substance, but many things of vain and empty show. Had Gloria been more skilled in reading the world's signs, every humble, every useless ornament would have preached a sermon. As it was, there was for her in large part only the interest of novelty.

To the right of Gloria were two windows looking out over the roofs of neighboring houses. Between them was a scarred maple dresser. It was littered among other things with postcard photographs, business cards, a calendar with a picture in many colors and a bottle of Florida water. Directly in front of her was the sick girl's bed, a cheap iron affair with massive tarnished brass trimmings. Beyond it was a frail-looking trunk painted in imitation of leather. The only things which boldly confessed not for their slaves they would die of starvation, even the midst of plenty.—From "Book for Young Naturalists," by Alpheus Hyatt Verrill.

To Lessen Wreck's Horror.

To avert the horrors of a sea disaster at night the lights are apt to be put out by the flooding of the electric generating plant. Experiments are being made on a new British vessel that is under construction, with a gasoline electric plant that may be placed on the bridge deck. This will not only supply the light, but the wireless telegraph apparatus as well, until the very moment of complete submergence of the vessel. This generating set will be used only in emergencies.

SLAVE-HOLDING AMONG ANTS

Custom Has Long Been Known, and Method of Procuring Such Servants Shows Intelligence.

Many of the large ants are slaveholders, and curiously enough, the slaves are almost black! When a colony of ants requires slaves a regular army is formed, skirmishes are thrown out and scouts are sent ahead to discover a nest of black ants and look over the ground. The invading army is composed entirely of warrior ants, with powerful jaws, quite different from the common workers. When the nest of the intended victims is reached a fierce battle at once takes place and many are killed and wounded on both sides. The more powerful invaders are always victorious, however, and entering the nest of the vanquished, they rob it of eggs and pupae, which they carry off to slavery in their own home. The returning victors are welcomed upon their arrival with various manifestations of joy, and the young of the defeated foes are taken within and carefully tended until fully grown. Strangely enough, the slaves thus obtained are willing and obliging servants, doing all the harder work of the community, even to feeding their captors. Indeed, some species of slave-holding ants are incapable of feeding themselves, and if it were themselves to be just as represented were two wooden kitchen chairs.

Looking close beside her, Gloria saw a battered maple washstand and beyond it a door which led into a closet under the stairs. She glanced curiously at the walls, which boasted some cheap prints, most of them showing by the advertising matter upon them from which whisky house they had emanated. Some of the girl's waists and skirts hung upon nails, but the clothes which she had taken off the night before on retiring were upon a chair beside her trunk.

"I heard you were sick," Mrs. Hayes said sympathetically, "and I want to know if I can do anything to help you."

Little Ella viewed them with cold antagonism. They were not of her world and she both feared and hated them.

"Naw," she growled. Then against her real wishes something out of her old life made her add grudgingly, "Much obliged."

Mrs. Hayes had worked too long among such people not to understand, and she ignored the girl's unfriendly manner by asking: "How do you feel today?"

"Better," she answered.

"No wonder; it's so close in here. I think it would be better for you if you'd let me open a window. It's mild out. May I?"

"Go as far as you like; I don't feel like fighting."

A nod from Mrs. Hayes sent Gloria to open a window.

"There now," exclaimed the younger visitor. "You'll feel better."

"Gloria," Mrs. Hayes asked, so the sick woman could not hear, "do you mind staying with her while I go to the mission for a few minutes?"

I want Mrs. Wallace to come over if she can; and the doctor, too, as soon as I can find him."

"Certainly, I'll stay," was the prompt response. "What's the matter with her?"

"I can't say until I see the doctor, because I'm not sure. I want Doctor Hayes to see her. If I can't get him I'll get Doctor Norton. You're not afraid to stay?"

Gloria smiled. What was there to fear? The girl surely could not become so ill in the short space of time that Mrs. Hayes should be away as to render her inexperienced nurse absolutely helpless.

"Of course I'm not afraid," she replied. Then impulsively, "Besides, I want to do some good in the world. I've been too selfish."

"No, dear, not that," her companion gently remonstrated. "Thoughtless, perhaps, because you didn't know, but not selfish." Then she turned to Little Ella and said in the same quiet tone: "I think you'd be happier where there'd be some one to take care of you."

"I'm not sick, I'm just tired."

The ignorant fear sickness and disguise it as long as they can, shirking the fight and thereby making it all the harder. Understanding this, Mrs. Hayes answered lightly:

"If that's the case, I hope you'll entertain my friend for me until I return. She's interested in the work at the mission."

"You're on," Little Ella replied with an air of resignation as Mrs. Hayes left the room. She rolled over on her side and closed her eyes. Already she began to feel bored.

To Lessen Wreck's Horror.

To avert the horrors of a sea disaster at night the lights are apt to be put out by the flooding of the electric generating plant. Experiments are being made on a new British vessel that is under construction, with a gasoline electric plant that may be placed on the bridge deck. This will not only supply the light, but the wireless telegraph apparatus as well, until the very moment of complete submergence of the vessel. This generating set will be used only in emergencies.

"Do not be angry, Dick, dear," she said. "I know it is a shame that I have forgotten it, but I shall send it to the tailor today."

Richard again looked at her, greatly surprised, but she pretended not to notice it.

"Well, it really does not matter so very much, dear. Today will do just as well."

A week later Julio visited her godmother. She looked as happy as during her honeymoon and Mrs. Berner told her so.

"Well, godmother, I do feel as if I were having a second honeymoon. I know that Dick loves me as much as he ever did."

"And how did you discover that?"

"It was the trillman you gave me."

"Then it has brought you luck?"

"Indeed it has. I have brought it back, as I do not quite like any more."

"Are you quite cured?"

"Quite, I have discovered its secret."

Julio laughed. "One of my own bracelets will do just as well, now that I know the truth of the old words: 'A soft answer turneth away wrath,' but I thank you all the same, for it was really your trillman that brought me happiness."

Difficult Standards.

"Are your views on currency going to be satisfactory to your constituents?"

"No hope of it!" replied Senator Sorghum. "I have a lot of constituents who couldn't be satisfied with any kind of a currency system, that didn't enable a man to get six one-dollar bills in exchange for a five."

WHAT JULIE DISCOVERED

By HARRY LE CLAIR.

Young Mrs. Holt was in bad humor as she walked down the street. Every little while she had to take out her handkerchief to wipe away the stupid tears that filled her eyes.

How could Richard ever have the heart to talk to her as he had done? They had been married only a year, and now he already behaved as if he were the master and she his slave. She had never thought that they would be unkind to one another, but of course she would not remain silent when he came home from the office in bad humor, so her replies were sharp and biting.

Again she wiped the tears away, for coming toward her at the next corner she saw her late mother's friend, her own godmother, Mrs. Berner.

"Come home and have a cup of coffee," she said. "Mary has just baked some cakes."

"Oh, I am so unhappy! Richard does not love me any more!"

"What do you say? Doesn't he love you any more?"

"No, I am sure he doesn't, or he would not talk to me as he does." And she told about several of their latest quarrels.

"But are you quite sure that you are not to blame a little yourself?"

"I know I am not," said Julie with determination. "but of course I cannot always be gay and jolly when he sulks and is unreasonable. There will be no happiness for me in life any more."

"Now, that is nonsense, my dear. I am sure your husband loves you as much as ever, but you are ruining your own happiness quarreling over trifles."

"But what do you want me to do?"

"I will help you, dear," said Mrs. Berner. "I will send you a trillman."

"A trillman?"

"Yes, here it is," said Mrs. Berner, and handed Julie an old-fashioned bracelet.

"What do you mean when you say it is a trillman?"

"I will tell you. When I had been married about a year, I too imagined that my husband did not love me because we sometimes quarreled. Then my mother gave me this bracelet and told me to wear it always."

Julie thanked her very much, but put no faith in the bracelet.

When Richard came home for dinner he had unfortunately brought a friend and as the dinner was rather spoiled, his humor was not the best when he was alone with his wife afterward.

"It was disgraceful to offer Miller a dinner like the one you served to-night," he said angrily.

"I am very sorry, Dick, but I shall be very careful not to let it happen again."

One morning a few days later when Julie entered the dressing room she found her husband staring at the clock looking very much annoyed.

"You have not had my gray suit sent to the tailor to be pressed," he growled. "Why have you not done so?"

"Because I am not your slave!" Julie was about to answer, but again she remembered the bracelet and also that Richard had several times asked her to send out the suit, but she had thoughtlessly forgotten it.

"Do not be angry, Dick, dear," she said. "I know it is a shame that I have forgotten it, but I shall send it to the tailor today."

Richard again looked at her, greatly surprised, but she pretended not to notice it.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Director of Evening Department, the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.)

LESSON FOR JANUARY 18.

THE GOOD SAMARITAN.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 10:25-37.

GOLDEN TEXT—"Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."—Mark 12:31.

Probably no other parable given by Jesus except possibly the Prodigal Son, has made such a deep impression as this one. It has inspired altruistic service, promoted the idea of the brotherhood of man, and served to crystallize Christian thinking and service.

1. "What shall I do?" vv. 25-29.

(1) The first question. This lawyer in his test question implied that eternal life was dependent upon his works, a well nigh universal Jewish idea. With a true teacher's skill, Jesus drew from his own knowledge of the law an answer to his question, viz.: that, on the ground of doing he must love the Father with an undivided heart; with all his soul, the seat of his emotions; with all his strength—concretely; and with all his mind—his intellectual powers. The evidence of such a love is that he must love his neighbor as himself. This is a staggering program, and we believe the lawyer asked his second question because he was dazed when he, perhaps for the first time, really comprehended this wonderful summary of the law. Jesus, however, holds him inflexibly to his own idea of works, and replies: "This do and thou shalt live." Small wonder that Paul, comprehending the human impossibility of such a program, should rejoice in knowing one who was equal to the task, Rom. 8:3. Jesus met the lawyer on the same plane he had been approached and directly answers the query of verse 25.

Summarized the Law.

(2) The second question. (v. 29).

Jesus had not said anything to this lawyer about belief, or faith, for he was not yet ripe for that idea. He had summarized the law and by this law Jesus must teach him

JUST TO COMPLETE BANQUET

Pathos in Youngster's Longing That Made Strong Appeal to Rich and Charitable Man.

The late Edward Morris, the Chicago meat packer, was worth over $500,000, and contributed every year to charity as much money as he spent upon his home.

Mr. Morris, like most charitable souls, had a host of anecdotes that threw a quantity of light on poverty. Thus at a Christmas dinner in Chicago Mr. Morris once said:

"Every eater of a Christmas dinner should think of the little urchin who stood in front of a rich man's basement kitchen, inhaling rapturously the rich odor of roast turkey that rushed forth from the open window, and muttering over and over to himself:

"Gee, I wish I had a slice o' bread to go with that there smell."

Zanzibar.

Zanzibar, now figuring as a possible pawn in an Anglo-German deal, has not come into the British empire without paying a heavy price in blood and treasure. The island of cloves was visited for the first time by the British fleet during the Napoleonic era, but since then we have kept the upper hand. Very uncomplimentary things have been said about the people of Zanzibar. Professor Drummond found the island in 1888, "Oriental in appearance, Mohammedan in religion, Arabian in morals—a cesspool of wickedness, fit capital for a dark continent." But the British residents appear to have a good time—big dinners, golf, tennis and cricket. The local cricket team indeed can be beaten only by the combined strength of the British fleet, "once a year, and sometimes not even then."

Any man under a cloud naturally appears in a bad light.

1913 RECORD Magnificent Crops in all Western Canada

All parts of the Province of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, have produced wonderful yields of Wheat, Oats, Barley and Flax. Wheat graded from Contract to No. 1 Hard, weighed heavy and yielded from 20 to 45 bushels per acre; 22 bushels was about the total average. Mixed Farming may be considered fully as profitable an industry as grain raising. The excellent grasses full of nutrition, are the only food required either for beef or dairy purposes. In 1912, and again in 1913, at Chicago, Manitoba carried off the Championship for best wheat. Good schools, markets convenient, climate excellent. For the homesteader, the man who wishes to farm extensively, or the investor, Canada offers the biggest opportunity of any place on the continent.

COULD GIVE EDITOR POINTS

Interview With Mother-in-Law Probably Would Have Made Things Warm for Mr. Jones.

At a recent banquet reference was made to the helping hand, which reached to Gov. Frank M. Ryan, of South Dakota, an incident that happened in a western town.

One morning a rather commanding looking woman entered a newspaper office, and asked to see the editor.

The editor was promptly produced. "In your paper this morning," said the woman, in a cold, hard voice, "you say that Mr. Jones is a bribe taker, a swindler, a mud slinger and a crook."

"It is a matter of politics, madam," said the editor, apologetically. "I am very sorry that we were compelled to make statements of that kind on your account, for I take it that you are a relative."

"I am his wife's mother," answered the visitor, "and I want to say that you haven't told more than half of the truth. The next time you want to publish his biography I wish you would send a reporter to see me."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

ECZEMA BURNED AND ITCHED

203 Walnut St., Hillsboro, Ill.—"My child had a breaking out on the lower limbs which developed into eczema. The eczema began with pimples which contained yellow corruption and from the child's clothing they were greatly irritated. They seemed to burn, which made the child scratch them, resulting in a mass of open places. They made her so cross and fretful that it was impossible to keep her quiet. They caused her to lose much sleep and she was constantly tormented by severe itching and burning."

"I tried several well-known remedies, but got no relief until I got a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, which did so much good that I got a large quantity that cured her in ten days after she had been affected for two months." (Signed) Mrs. Edith Schwartz, Feb. 28, 1913.

Radiation and its Manufacture.

Although, until recently, the manufacture of radium has been carried on almost wholly in France and Germany, there appears to be no good reason why our American carnotite should not be treated at home, says a writer. Carnotite is much more easily treated than pitchblende and its chemical treatment are well known, although much of the mechanical detail of operation has been kept secret. As the mechanical requirements, however, are those which any well grounded chemical engineer should be able to solve, there seems to be no good reason why any of our carnotite ores should be shipped abroad, even at two or three times the present market price of the material.

Seasonable Dialogue.
The shades of the geese and turkey were discussing the circumstances which had attended their respective deaths.

"Did you offer any objection when first the cruel farmer laid hands on you?" sympathetically inquired the gobbler.

"Yes," replied his goosehip; "I cried out, 'Hollo! what's this?'"

"What did you say next?" inquired the now thoroughly interested turkey.

"Oh," the goose replied, "I did not say anything more just then; I was wringing off."

Biting on Germs.

Radford, No. 175 West Jackson boulevard, Chicago, Ill., and only enclose two-cent stamp for reply.

One of the most comfortable little cottage houses ever built is shown in this design. When you come to corral all the necessary modern improvements and fit them into a little house only twenty feet in width and thirty feet in length you have quite a job on your hands; but that is exactly what has been done in designing this little five room cottage. "Bungalow" some people would call it, because the word bungalow is very fashionable just now, but a bungalow properly speaking is a one story house with a flat, or at least a low roof.

It often happens that a family is very anxious to own a home and they find houses and lots so expensive that after looking around for several months they are obliged to give it up, at any rate for the time being. It is to meet just such cases that I recommend such small low cost houses as this.

Americans as a rule have rather large ideas in regard to dwellings. As a usual thing we want large rooms and plenty of them, but I find that public opinion is passing through a change and it has been brought about largely through the influence of city flats, many of which contain little conveniences that are not common in houses.

Taxes in larger cities are double what they were ten or twenty years ago. Skilled mechanics get four or five dollars a day where formerly they got two or three dollars; and the same scale of expense follows through all the different departments of building. The result is that architects have learned how to work the necessities from comfort into very small compass, together with a great many luxuries; and to combine the many good features of the modern house with the best of the old.

will heat this house with very little fuel. By placing the furnace well back the front part of the cellar may be partitioned off and kept cool for a fruit cellar. The front end is proper for this purpose because the front part of the house usually is cooler than the back. Then you have more or less dust from the furnace and it makes more noise sometimes than you want under the living room. Planning these little details is very interesting as well as very important. The little housekeeping questions that mean so much to a woman have very little effect on a furnace man. A great tures into dwellings of very small proportions.

But there is one objection to a flat that no amount of skill on the part of the architect can overcome, and that is the scarcity of air and light. For this reason more than any other I have advocated the building of small houses in the suburbs; for although it may take a worker from the city a few minutes longer to reach home at night it is a healthy outing; the difference in the air alone is worth the extra time and cost of making the trip.

This is a little house but it is planned to give every possible return in comfort for every inch of space it contains. There is nothing necessary to the thorough enjoyment of a home left out or neglected.

It has the popular large living room and good dining room and a convenient kitchen on the first floor. There is an attractive front stair going up to the two bedrooms on the second floor and under this stair is the way down to the cellar. A splendid fireplace adds a great deal to the attractions of the living room and the windows are so large and there are so many of them that this room is almost as light as outdoors. In fact every room in the house is as bright and cheerful as it is possible to make it even in the open country. The dining room is large enough for a small family and it is another very attractive room, while the kitchen is just right for a workhouse for the mistress while superintending the needs of a small many furnaces are placed in the most objectionable positions just because the owners neglected to think up the subject before the heating plant was installed.

It makes no difference to a furnace man where the heater is placed except that some pipes carry hot air better than others; and they should be longer and others should be shorter in proportion for this reason. But such calculations apply more particularly to larger houses. In a little house like this where the pipes are all short the furnace may be placed on one side of the chimney just as well as to put it on the other side. The only question to decide is where the owner wants it and the owner should not only know but he should know why.

Eyesight Worth Money.
The man who can walk about the lawn or in the park and pick up four-leaf clovers has an eye that is worth big money to him. He can easily be trained to see things that ordinary men will miss or have to look a long time to find.

Some men who go hunting can see a squirrel in an oak or hickory tree with apparent ease, while others will go strolling about the timber and never see the game at all. It is the same way in the open field. The rabbit can be found sitting by some, while others will almost run over the creature before it is detected.

This ability is a gift. This is not only a gift developed by some and undeveloped by others as a result of their surroundings, but it measures the exact amount of intelligent effort they have expended in attaining this ability, also their perseverance in the line of endeavor. Aside from the external causes that have made us what we are, environment and heredity, is an inherent capacity of individual intelligence, or, in other words, natural ability.

GREAT CRY, LITTLE WOOL.

KENTUCKY'S BUSINESS RECORD.
Says the Louisville Post:
Business does not boom in Kentucky as elsewhere, but it is safer and sounder.
In 1913 there was a marked increase in business failures in the country. In 1912 the failures numbered 15,452; in 1913 they increased to 16,037, with 272 million liabilities.
But in Kentucky the comparison was altogether better. In 1912 the number of failures was 242, with liabilities of over $2,000,000, while in 1913 the number was 223, with liabilities of only $1,500,000.

THE ALL PERVERAING GRIP.
That most aggravating and emervating malady, the grip, is known throughout the world, but is called by many different names.

A book devoted to the discussion of grip recently has appeared in Great Britain. According to this book the grip is a disease without a country, since "every country tries to make it out a native of another land." Some of the appellations by which it is known are of interest. In Russia it is called Siberian fever; in France, Spanish catarrh; in Spain, Russian fever or Russian influenza. France also calls it la grippe, by which name it was introduced to the United States. Portugal knows it as the rainy fever. Germany calls it by various names, such as sheep's disease, fashionable fever, lightning catarrh, fog plague and Russian disease. Italy also knows it as Russian malady and sheep's disease, and a part of Italy denominates it as German sickness.

Brazil knows the grip as polka fever and Sweden and Denmark apply the word fever to it with various prefixes. One of the names given it in Spain is pantomime trancazo, which literally means a blow with a bar. In some parts of France it is called le toe, which means a blow on the head. Among the popular names applied to the disease when it first appeared in England were the "new acquaintance," the "gentle correction," the "new delight" and the "knock-me-down fever." Some of these names must have been chosen when a mild form of the epidemic was prevailing. The grip as it is more generally known in the United States is in no way a "delight," nor are its symptoms suggestive of "gentle correction." The "knock-me-down fever" is much more appropriate.

When the grip was first prevalent in this country, something like a quarter of a century ago, it was understood to be of Russian origin. Most of the countries of the world seem to have that idea, as evidenced by the names, Russian fever, Russian sickness, Russian influenza, Russian malady. Those who have experienced the grip will agree that it is worthy of Russian origin.—Courier-Journal.

HEARD IN MAYSVILLE
How Bad Backs Have Been Made Strong—Kidney Pills Corrected.

All over Maysville you hear it. Doan's Kidney Pills are keeping up the good work. Maysville people are telling about it—telling of bad backs made sound again. You can believe the testimony of your own townspeople. They tell it for the benefit of you who are suffering. If your back aches, if you feel lame, sore and miserable, if the kidneys act too frequently, or passages are painful, scanty and off color, use Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy that has helped so many of your friends and neighbors. Follow this Maysville citizen's advice and give Doan's a chance to do the same for you.

Henry Gallenstein, blacksmith, Poplar St., Maysville, Ky., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are the best of kidney remedies. I have used different kinds and no other has ever equalled this one. When my kidneys were out of order and I had pain in my back, I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and used them. They entirely stopped the pains and my kidneys became strong. The relief has been permanent."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

AEROPLANE MONOPOLY

Handed To Wright Company By Federal Court Decision, It Is Said.

New York.—Six aeroplane manufacturing companies are directly affected by the decision handed down in the Federal Circuit Court Monday, and it is learned that it is the intention of the Wright Company to institute damage suits against them immediately. The original case can, however be taken up to the United States Supreme Court on a further appeal by the Herring-Curtiss Company and Glen Curtiss.

Up to the present time the Wright Company, of Germany, has not proceeded against any of the companies in that country despite the fact that the German Courts decided the action in their favor.

If the present decision is not appealed, the Wrights will have, it is said, a monopoly in the United States, Germany, and France. No suits are pending in England, where rights have been sold.

Sell Now
And Sell at the HOME!

When you sell there you are sure of the best results.

Most people sell there because the managers of the house do not speculate in tobacco and have in mind ALONE the interest of the seller.

They employ the best sorters in this section and more of them than any other house.

They have the largest and best fitted building in the Burley District and plenty of room.

The 510 skylights in the roof are equal distance apart and make the most uniform and best light obtainable.

They guarantee every basket of tobacco sold over their floor to the purchaser and have the full confidence of all buyers.

The house belongs to home folks and they are interested in home people and enterprises. Those are some of the reasons why tobacco and why most people sell theirs there. We sold 604,260 pounds last week, being an increase of 115,170 pounds over the same week of last year. They would like to have you come and investigate their policy before selling elsewhere. Strictly commission. No speculating at the expense of the grower. If you want a good sale sell at the Home.

PALMER AND BUCKNER.

(Philadelphia Record.)

General Simon Buckner, who has just died at his home in Kentucky, will be remembered not only as a gallant soldier in two wars and Governor of his State, but as the candidate for Vice President on the Gold Democratic ticket in 1896, along with General Palmer, of Illinois.

In those days of financial heresy it required no little moral courage to break away from the party they had supported for many years and to raise the banner of an honest currency and political independence. Messrs. Palmer and Buckner were equal to the occasion and deserve well of the country for the sacrifice they made.

Senator James announced appointments made thus far on his recommendation in the income tax collection service.

HOME GROWN COFFEE

Mrs. Litzinger of Minerva Has Been Growing Enough to Supply Family For Thirteen Years.

(Dover News.)

Some time ago we mentioned that Byron Daniels had raised a good quality of coffee in his garden in Dover.

Since that time Mrs. Joseph Litzinger, of the Minerva neighborhood, informs us that she has been raising in her garden for the past thirteen years a species of German coffee sufficient in quality to supply their family of thirteen persons each year, and during the past summer produced nearly a hundred pounds of the article.

It is a bean of splendid flavor when browned and of healthful properties. The plant grows to be about three feet in height, has beautiful foliage and is easily cultivated.

She says that a pound of this coffee will go as far as three pounds of the South American article and has used only this kind on her table since she has been planting it.

She would gladly have it generally introduced among our people, as it is no longer a novelty, but an assured staple, so far as her household is concerned.

BED, SHAVE, SHINE, NICKEL

Poor Man's Hotel Adopts Plan to Aid In Getting Jobs.

Chicago.—The latest innovation at the Rufus F. Dawes "Nickel" Hotel is a barberless barber shop. Every man who enters for a night's lodging is welcome to a free shave and a shoe shine—only there is no barber to administer the shave nor porter to supply the shine. Upon applying to the clerk, a guest will receive a safety razor with a sharp blade. Shoe brushes and polish are also furnished without cost.

Charles G. Dawes, wealthy banker and founder of the institution, is responsible for the innovation. He suggested that the men would have a better chance to get jobs if they looked neat.

Weak Kidneys Often the Result of Overwork

On several occasions I have been unable to work and suffered severe pains in the back, due to my kidneys. I called on a doctor of Ripon, Wis., but received no relief.

I tried Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root which gave me instant relief. I was then able to resume work. Swamp-Root is the only relief I can get from kidney disease which I am subject to in the spring of the year. I am writing this testimonial through my own free will that sufferers of kidney and bladder diseases will know of the wonderful merits of Swamp-Root. I recommend Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root whenever I can and always have a bottle of Swamp-Root in my home.

I purchased Swamp-Root of Mr. C. J. Burns, Druggist, of 202 Main street, Ripon, Wis.

Very truly yours,

BALL SEASON

Lasts Till October 7—Three Extra Days For Postponed Games In The West.

The major league schedules this year contain one novel provision, which has never been in force heretofore.

The playing season will open in both leagues on Tuesday, April 14, with all 16 clubs engaged in mortal combat.

The season in the West will close on Sunday, October 4, and in the east on Wednesday, October 7, giving the Eastern clubs three extra days to make up for their not playing on Sunday when on their own grounds.

The novelty of the schedule consists in the fact that the Western clubs will be allowed to play off postponed games on the three days, from October 5 to 7, after their regular season closes. Never before has this privilege been permitted. In former years when a team had played its final scheduled contest it was not allowed to play off any games later, even if other clubs in the league were scheduled to continue playing for several days.

Under the new system in vogue this year, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of the first week in October will be open for the playing off of games which may be postponed during the last series of the clubs.

PEARCE IN CONTROL

Of Citizens National — Opponents Shown to Be Pikers.—Some Lively Tilts.—Canvassers Still Busy.

(Louisville Times.)

With Charles D. Pearce, president of the Citizens National Life Insurance Company, apparently in complete control, despite the bitter fight that has been made to unseat him during the past month, interest in the second day's proceedings of the annual meeting, which began yesterday at the home of the in Anchorage, centers principally in the ticket to be named by the administration forces today.

The story was going the rounds last night that before the stockholders' meeting is adjourned an opportunity will be afforded for an expression of opinion on the consolidation with the Inter-Southern Life Insurance Company, promoted by insurgent influences.

President Pearce said that it was not his intention to bring the merger matter before the stockholders, but he understood it would likely be brought up. He said that he had no objection to the matter's being considered. All that he had opposed, so far as a consolidation was concerned, he said, was an apparent effort to force a merger on the stockholders. He had always been willing to do what the stockholders wished in the merger matter, he explained.

THE PROGRESS OF THE Independent Warehouse!

Is evidenced by the fact that we are holding all our old customers and gaining many new ones. This is due to the manner in which we conduct their business for them. Our efforts are always in the interest of the seller and the average of $19.17 made by George Wilson, Adams county, on 3,445 pounds, and the average of L. M. Morgan, Mason county, $17.92, show that we get results. One basket reached $25 and several went past $20. The experience our force has had gives us the right to say "We Lead; Others Follow." Bring your tobacco and let us prove it to you.

ELECTRIC SIGNS!

The distinguishing air of quality which a first-class Electric Sign gives to a store is the element which gives a sign its greatest value as an advertising medium and investment. The impression it makes is good. It blazes forth to the public that there is business enterprise, merchandise and methods up-to-date. It affects the entire atmosphere of the business district. The stranger says, "It is a live town," and publishes it abroad.
It is the Sign of the Times.
